Description

Exterior of power plant at Fouhsin, Manchuria. Large holes are cut in the sides of the building so generators could be removed by Soviets during occupation. Piles of debris around the premises indicates the great haste and rough handling of the machinery. Photograph taken during the U.S. Reparations Mission. Edwin Pauley was the U.S. Ambassador on the Allied Reparations Committee from 1945-47 (the committee that assessed the reparations the Axis powers could afford to pay the victors).
